Dear Mr Kamm,

In Reply to your letter of September 22, I wrote on September 28 to request 4 copies of your latest book. Whether they have been lost in the mail or forgotten I do not know, but I hope you will be able to send them soon. If possible I would like to receive 6 copies. If it is possible to include two extra copies of the first volume that would also be greatly appreciated.

If the typed copy of your interview is available before I leave on holidays this coming Sunday, I will forward it to you. Otherwise I will be away for three weeks and there may be some delay.

I am sorry that through some misunderstanding you were not able to make better use of your Advocate. When I arrived in Canberra he contacted me to say he did not think it necessary to be present at the interview as this was not normally the custom in marriage nullity cases. It was only when I explained who you were and the necessity of his presence and that this was not a marriage nullity case that arrangements were made for him to be present. His task on that occasion was to see that your rights were respected; a more formal representation might be necessary at some future date.

Yours sincerely in Christ,

Father Kevin Matthews
